History:

University Extension began in 1903 in the town of Hull in Sioux County, Iowa. Farmers in the county established the nation's first county cooperative experimental farm along with Perry Holden, ISU's Agronomy Department organizer. The experimental farm involved farmers in comparative field testing, under the direction of the university. The model was adopted nation-wide in 1914 with the passage of the Smith-Lever Act, which brought together federal, state and county governments to form Cooperative Extension. By 1918 every county in Iowa had its own Extension agent and its mission had grown to serve communities, families, business and industry.

The Farm Bureau appears to have been the organization which worked with Extension in Scott County, Iowa from its inception in 1918. Early Extension County Agents included G. R. Bliss and M. H. Hoffman. Early Home Demonstration Agents included Mrs. Esther Kramer, Edith P. Barker and Lulu Tregoning.

The agents were asked to file an annual report providing an account of the year's work which was to be divided into two parts: 1) a narrative report, and 2) a tabulated or summary report.
