various handwriting on back blue ink: First Police Matron Mrs. Sarah Hill; picture taken at House of Detention 5th Main pencil: Mrs. Hattie Platt; 2800 Eastern Avenue (see also image of police on plank sidewalk outside of "old markethouse" or "Bridewell" labeled Platt) red ink stamp: Times Copy; size 4 x 5 ½ ; Time wanted Wed; Dept. Green; Instructions

An elderly woman wearing a dark blouse and skirt with a light colored apron is sitting on a large wooden chair in front of a roll top desk studying papers. There are many framed images on the desktop and hanging on the wall above the desk. A large clock also hangs above the desk. The floors are covered with carpets. Many details of the interior can be seen including the telephone, lightings, etc. Research indicates this would be the interior of Bridewell, or the old Markethouse, located at 5th and Main Streets.

RESEARCH: Mrs. G. W. (Sarah) HILL began working as Davenport's Police Matron in July 1893 and continued in that position until 1920. Federal and state census records indicate Mrs. Hill was widowed, born about 1850 and lived where she worked - in the House of Detention at 5th and Main Street also called Bridewell. She received $55 a month for wages in 1900. The first police matron was actually Miss Annie E. DAVIS from 1889 until 1893. Tillie Boettscher followed Mrs. Hill as the third police matron.

Dirt road, horse pulling buggy-men standing on wooden plank sidewalk – two men seated in chairs.

Building is likely the "old markethouse" also known as "Bridewell" where the police were headquartered from 1877 – 1896, located at 5th and Main.

Image is 9.5 x 11.5" on matte 11 x 13"
